Structures for Stability

For services to remain organized and effective, they must have a stable, functional home base—whether that base is a building, a tent, or a vehicle. People seeking assistance must know the “where” to go to find what they need, just as much as they must trust that the location will have the help they seek. For example, schools need classrooms, clinics need physical sites and water sources, and community outreach programs need vehicles.

When a Sisters’ ministry requires some kind of infrastructure for the stability and consistency of their services, they must turn to others for help. Often, the most impactful assistance we can provide to the Sisters is a practical upgrade of their facilities or by providing necessary equipment. The photos in this brochure demonstrate some of the results that can occur when projects are supported with the necessary infrastructure to thrive. It is small and large donations from people like you that make stabilization of the Sisters’ services and structures possible. Your donation helps us work together to live out the Gospel mandate to actively and practically love our neighbors.
